Lipumax-G

Roselands Shopping Centre, Roselands, NSW

In 1965, Roselands Shopping Centre in South-Western Sydney was the largest shopping centre in the southern hemisphere. Today, whilst it is now considered medium sized, the complex recently underwent a $70M upgrade with the addition of new Woolworths and Aldi supermarkets along with 50 speciality shops.

Project Design Brief

Grease traps were required to deal with the wastewater from all food outlets. According to the building's hydraulic requirements and Sydney Water regulations, nine new 5000L grease traps were required. Designers wanted these products to be strong, durable, easy to install and maintain.
